Evening Telegram.

His labors for the dignity of Judaism in the United States were severe and unintermitted, and his solemn models of piety and patriotic love for the American country. No clergyman ever was more in earnest to be right and to proceed safely and understandingly than the late Dr. Isaacs, and though his mortal remains are now shrouded for the tomb, he leaves for his numerous friends a worthy example of a noble, charitable and patriotic life.

Herald.

His advice was sought for by prominent Hebrews in all parts of the country. He was one of the founders of the Mount Sinai Hospital. He was always ready when called upon to aid in public matters. He has lectured before Yale College and other institutions. Mr. Isaacs was always beloved and respected for his consistency. There was never a blemish upon his character. He was very charitable and always ready to befriend a stranger. He was very firm in his adherence to the ritual and orthodox teachings, a position from which he never swerved. This gained him the respect of the community, and of Jews of all branches.

Sun.

Dr. Isaacs occupied a unique position when he arrived in America. He was the only English speaking Jewish preacher in New York, the other rabbis preaching only in German or Hebrew, and throngs of Christians went to hear him. All who heard him liked him, and his popularity with members of the antagonistic creed increased with the passing years. Although a Jew of the old school, Dr. Isaacs all his life was on terms of friendship and good will with Christians of all denominations. Roman Catholic priests, as well as clergymen of the evangelical sects, were on his list of friends and correspondents, and he was ever ready to unite in a deed of charity with Gentile as well as Jew. His last coherent words, spoken on Wednesday, were: "I have done my duty."

World.

Rev. Mr. Isaacs was universally esteemed by the American Jews for his honesty, his benevolence and his ability. His services were in constant demand throughout the country, and during his forty years of labor he consecrated thirty-eight synagogues in different parts of the Union, including the first one ever built in the State of Illinois. He has been well called "the father of Jewish orphans" in America, for in him every needy Jew found a friend. Many of the wealthy Israelites of New York intrusted their aims to him for distribution, and few poor foreigners ever came to New York without going to him for assistance. He was always glad to be of service to a brother Israelite, for he put in constant practice the old Hebrew saying, "All Jews are brethren." Mr. Isaacs, during his long and busy life, did perhaps more than any other one man in New York to make the name of a Jew respected, and to reflect credit upon the Jewish synagogue and the Jewish ministry.

Washington Post.

To-day there will be buried in New York City the oldest Jewish clergyman in the United States—the Rev. Samuel M. Isaacs, he having begun his ministrations over thirty-seven years ago in what was then known as the Elm street synagogue, one of the largest, as well as the wealthiest congregations in that city. Up to the time Mr. Isaacs accepted this call the service of the synagogues in this country, with the exception of one in Philadelphia, of which the late Rev. Isaac Leeser was the pastor, was conducted in the Hebrew language, but Mr. Isaacs saw the need of sermons in the vernacular, and forthwith may be said to have created a pulpit which has found many followers, but few, if any, superiors. — Until within a few years past he delivered sermons with his accustomed regularity and earnestness, but, having passed the period of time allotted to man on earth his physical powers succumbed, although his mental faculties remained unabated. Mr. Isaacs was an intimate friend of the octogenarian English philanthropist, Sir Moses Montefiore, with whom he corresponded continually, and was also one of the founders of the Mount Sinai Hospital of New York, probably the largest Jewish hospital in the world. — "Well done, good and faithful servant."

PERSONAL.—Mrs. S. M. Isaacs and family take this method of gratefully acknowledging the thoughtful kindness of friends extended to them in their affliction.

TOKEN OF SYMPATHY.

At a meeting of the Directors of this Society, held May 20th, 1878, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted.

WHEREAS, It has been the will of an all wise Providence to remove from our midst, in the prime of his usefulness, one of the land marks of Israel, our late Treasurer, our revered and deeply lamented brother and friend, the Rev. S. M. Isaacs, and

WHEREAS, The death of our associate has caused a vacancy in our midst which can never be more efficiently replaced; caused an irreparable void in his home, where peace, cheerfulness, happiness, and religion, in the true sense of the word, reigned
